LOGAN.

Logan, March 3.—The annual military ball given by the military association of the A. C. was held in the pavilion on Monday evening and was one of the most enjoyable events of the season. Immense flags and streamers of red, white and blue bunting were tastefully used in decorating the pavilion and a tiny silk flag was presented to each person present. The boys presented a stunning appearance in their uniforms and the drill under Capt. Jensen was one of the pleasant features of the evening, as was also the excellent musical numbers by the A. C. military band. The refreshments served were exceptionally nice. The faculty and student body of the college and also the townspeople were well represented. The party was under the general management of Capt. H. D. Styer.

The masque ball given in the pavilion on Wednesday evening was a very pretty and decidedly successful affair. The characters were all well sustained and among the best and prettiest costumes were those worn by Mrs. D. H. Thomas, Miss Phyllis Thatcher, Misses Minnie and Edna Peterson, Miss Josephine Thatcher, Miss Ida Mitchell, Miss Edna Daniels, Miss Virginia Blair, Mrs. Nettie Sloan, Mr. John Christensen, Mr. Guy Cardon, Mr. Leo Squires, Mr. George Sloan, Mr. George Torgensen, Miss Lou Thatcher, Miss Vivian Hatch, Miss Rhea Ricks, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thatcher, Miss Veda Thatcher, Miss Nora Eliason, Dr. Emels, Mrs. Preston Thatcher. #### In Women's World.

Bridge whist is an old game and credited to the east, where it is said long to have been popular in Constantinople, Smyrna and a southeastern Europe. Though it was first played in England about 1830, and began to be played in America by the Whist club of New York in 1833, its real popularity in England did not begin until 1894. The beginning of its extreme vogue was due, according to R. F. Foster, author of "Foster's Complete Bridge," to a mere accident. "The game apparently did not find its way into the Portland club until 1894, 14 years after its intro-being made by two Americans, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Garland."

Honey Cake—Mix one cup of honey with a cup of sugar and add one-half cup of melted butter, two slightly-beaten eggs, a pint of flour in which has been sifted a teaspoonful of baking powder and a teaspoonful of caraway seeds. Mix these ingredients into a smooth batter about the consistency of sponge cake and bake in a moderate oven.

Shrimp Scallops—Wash thoroughly the contents of two cans of shrimps in cold water, drain and mash with a large spoon. Put a layer of bread crumbs in a scallop dish, sprinkle over it a little chopped parsley, salt, cayenne and butter, then a layer of shrimp treated in the same way, a layer of the bread crumbs and turn over the whole when the dish is full, a third of a cup of milk and break two eggs over the whole. Bake 20 minutes in a brisk, even oven.

A pretty shirt-waist suit depends upon curiously shaped bands which outline the front box-plait for its style. Stuffed bands trim the leg-of-mutton sleeves; and the shirt is made with an effect of four panels, the middle one most favored for blouse and shirt waists and every sort of thing this summer.

The belt should match—not necessarily the material of the dress, but the character of the dress, and in consequence of that decree of fashion, every sort of linen belt imaginable has to be conjured up.

When living at a quiet hotel, blouses in various degrees of smartness are a boon, and the dainty lace coffee coat should not be forgotten. Made in bolero style on net, covered by two or three frills of net, it must have plenty of lace insertion joined by thin bows of blue, pink or mauve crepe de chene.

If the czarina is sadder, somewhat less "sunny" than we are, one can pardon her and understand it, writes Isabel F. Hapgood in Harper's Bazaar; it is a trying position for a young woman of two and twenty to feel that every one in the world is her slightest gesture and movement with critical intent—especially for a shy young woman. Some of my court friends who were received by her privately soon after her marriage, and therefore had a better opportunity to judge than at a general reception, wrote me: "She is extremely shy. One can see that she does her best—but one has to help her in conversation." Surely such an attitude, joined to her youth, sweetness and helplessness, should have appealed to the chivalry of the men and the warm-heartedness of the women, as far more sympathetic than a perfectly self-possessed imperial air. No doubt it did; but people at a distance are apt to hear of—or to remember—only the harsh criticisms and the empress's half-Russian extraction has, undoubtedly, militated against her popularity with many Russians, because England and all that is hers is generally unpopular in Russia. Hence her shy reserve has often been credited to English coldness, enmity and an oversten code of conduct.

Lady Florence Dixie, whose death recently occurred at her home in England, was well known in this country. She was the youngest daughter of the seventh Marquis of Queensberry, and was born in 1857. She was a poet, novelist, sportsman, explorer and woman suffragist. Although a devoted sportsman, she was as violently opposed to shooting for amusement as is President Roosevelt, and in a book called "Ranks in the Field," she mercilessly scored those who killed for sport. A short time before her death, Lady Florence had made arrangements for the publication of a new book called "Ira," which will be published before long in New York and London.

"There is in man's nature a secret inclination and motion toward love of others, which, if it is not spent upon some one or a few, does naturally spread itself toward many," said Lord Bacon, three centuries ago. The remark might be applied with good reason to the unmarried woman, who within the last half century has become a moving power in the world as such names as Florence Nightingale, Susan B. Anthony, Frances Willard, Clara Barton, Harriet Martineau, Frances Power Cobbe, Mary Lyon and Jane Adams—to quote but a few—will show.

Good Dressers Take Notice

The New "Duds" for Spring are in.

If you want to be stylish and correctly dressed, you must buy your clothes at Z. C. M. I. We are showing just the kind that particular men are looking for—smart, swagger, snappy clothes, with all the little kinks that give character and tailorish tone to the wearer's appearance. Our "Eff & Eff" clothing is superior to any other make.

Gray is to be the most popular color in Suits for Spring and Summer, but there will be a wide variety of handsome patterns and colors to choose from, including a full complement of blues and blacks. Worsteds and serges are the favorite cloths, with the coat cut long and the pants full, affording supreme comfort and dressy appearance.

Both single and double breasted suits will be worn, a distinctive feature in the latter being the eight-inch side rents, which add so greatly to the correct hang of the coat. We guarantee a perfectly close fitting collar and shoulders on every suit of clothes that leaves this store. We cannot afford to sell an ill-fitting suit of clothes to anyone—and we never will.

OUR PRICES ARE HONESTLY RIGHT.

We have one of the prettiest lines of Fancy Vests ever shown in this city. The same is true of the new Spring Shirts, colored or white, in plain and pleated fronts. We would like you to see our line of spring goods.

We believe the Boys and Little Fellows should be as well dressed as their seniors, and we have just the styles of clothes that make this possible. Come and see us boys, we've just what you want.
